REUNION

NEWSLETTER

August 5-10, 1997
Columbia, Maryland

Greetings to the Huguely Family Members:

The Maryland Group with the insistence of Jimmy Cornelison convinced the Reunion that we should visit the capital city area, and here we are.

While you are relaxing from the journey, let's enjoy some of the happenings that have taken place this past year with our family members. Please remember that all news items should be sent to the Huguely Reunion Business Office, 3802 Woodford Road, IW, Cincinnati, Ohio 45213, (513) 791-1279.

MACK HUGUELY & MILLER TURNER BRANCH

What a pleasure it is to say, "Welcome to our part of the country." The 1997 Reunion Committee members--namely, the five Cornelisons and Kenny Cobb (of the Everee Huguely and Green Gentry Branch), along with Lucille Ellison and Eric Harris in Cincinnati--have had a tremendous amount of fun in preparing for you. In fact, we've been so busy with the reunion, we just did beat the June 30 deadline for getting our own reservations to Vicki for the tours, banquet, and breakfast. In our "spare time" from reunion tasks, here's a sampling of what we've been up to:

- Jim spends his retirement days in full-time employment at the State Department, and is beginning to think about full retirement. He is deacon at Concord Baptist Church in Baltimore and enjoys teaching Sunday School and the New Discipleship classes. He makes a mean pound cake and apple pie and challenges any outdoor cook on the grill. The idea of looking for a smaller house with less grass to cut (and with less storage space for Alice to fill) sounds better each spring. The best part of the day is "chilling out" to the sounds of his jazz CD's as loud as he wants to hear them.
- Michael has become "addicted" to snow boarding; but when there's no snow to be found, he spends time on his motorcycle and bicycles. Utah and Lake Placid (New York) offered wonderful ski slopes for snow boarding, while his longest motorcycle trip has been to Martha's Vineyard (Massachusetts). One advantage to living in Arlington (Virginia) is that before and after Arlington Cemetery's visitors' hours, local people enjoy jogging and bicycling through the Cemetery.
- Erin is better prepared for the Chicago heat with a newly-installed central air conditioner, but she wishes the little disk in the electric meter would not go around so fast. Before President Clinton's appeal for volunteerism, Erin had already taken a class to tutor adults in reading through the local community college's "Access to Literacy" program. She continues to be a serious runner, even running with a group of men because the pace of women is often too slow. Erin treated herself to a fun weekend trip to Little Rock (Arkansas) in June where the unexpected hilly terrain was an invigorating challenge on morning runs. By the way, Erin considered bidding on Princess Diana's dresses, but they were too big!
- After hearing a program on Oprah's show, Terri put aside her ovarian cancer research at the National Institutes of Health for a couple of days and put her research skills to work at becoming a consignment shopper sleuth. She now knows the best shops in the Washington suburban area for stunning buys. Speaking of research, finding Matthew and Amie and Matthew's brother, George, and a sundry of other Huguely relatives in the 1870 and 1880 census records at the National Archives was thrilling -- sacred moments of ancestral discovery. The paper trails we leave are important to those who follow.
- This spring, Alice and Jim took a three-day break, going to Harper's Ferry, West Virginia (known for the activities of the abolitionist, John Brown), then to Gettysburg, Pennsylvania to the Gettysburg Civil War Battle Field, and on to Atlantic City. They have a great love for museums and places of history. On June 21, they made an enjoyable weekend run (a 12 hour drive each way) to Hilton Head Island (South Carolina) just to attend the church's 116th anniversary the next day on Daufuskie Island, a Gullah Island that can only be reached by boat. Alice is a steward at Mt. Pisgah AME Church in Columbia.

We thank God for his blessings, including your presence here this year.

Eric Harris, the son of Donna Harris, was a first grade honor roll student at the Southern Baptist Christian Academy. He was elected to represent his school in the T-Ball all-star game. He is still an avid golfer and has already started practice for the football season.

Donna Harris, who is employed by the Better Housing League, has organized a Home Buyers Club in Cincinnati to educate Section-8 renters on how to become home owners.

Lucille Ellison continues to enjoy retirement. In April, she spent four days in Rochester, New York. In June, she traveled with a tour group to Hilton Head, North Carolina for a fun-filled week. In July, she spent a week in Reno, Nevada at the Womens' International Bowling Tournament. Didn't win any money, but had lots of fun.

LUCIAN HUGUELY/ELIZABETH COVINGTON BRANCH

Greetings from the Kennedy family!

Culminate has been a key word in our household this year. After years of hard work, Erika graduated high school, Erin received a Master's degree, and Sammie retired.

On June 5, Erika graduated with honors from Walnut Hills High School. She will be entering Florida A&M University this fall. She participated in Teen Institute, an organization that promotes a drug and alcohol free lifestyle, PSI (Postponing Sexual Involvement), a program in which high school students teach middle school and junior high school students to postpone sexual involvement, the Walnut Hills Drill Team and the Walnut Hills Student Congress, in which she was an Executive Board member. Erika is also a National Achievement Scholar.

Erin, a National Achievement Scholar, 1988 Walnut Hills graduate and 1992 graduate of the University of Chicago, received her Master of Art in Counseling Psychology from Northwestern University on June 20, 1997.

We were entertained at the Commencement by Bill Cosby, who warned parents to be aware of the fact that after all this education their children might come back home. The Reverend Jesse Jackson spoke at the Convocation. He warned the graduates to have all the facts before attempting to make changes in our society. Both speakers were entertaining as well as informative.

Hold on! We have reached milestones, but we haven't stopped yet.

Erika received a full scholarship to and will enter FAMU's renown School of Business & Industry's five-year MBA program this month.

Erin will continue at Northwestern until 1999 when she will receive her Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology.

With the girls being so busy, Sammie needed a rest. She retired after 31 years with Cincinnati Public Schools on June 6.
